Chapter 1 by Unusual_Abby

I look round and see my mom on the ground. I scream. My dad is hiding in the shadows. "Dad!?" I ask. "Just walk away, nothing ever happened." He says calmly. I slowly back away. Scared of my father I run to my sister's room. "Ari! Dad killed mom!" I scream at her. "I know" She says like it's normal. "Ari, do you have anything to do with this?" I ask. "Of course, we all had a family meeting, and agreed mom had to go." She said still calmly. "I never went to the meeting, I never knew there was a meeting. Why didn't you tell me?" I ask, scared of my sister too. "Because we all knew you 'Liked' mom. And we didn't want you in our way." My sister says. I back away from her. I can't believe everyone felt like this. Poor mom.

Chapter 2 by SaintSayaka

Living in a town of ninjas had some benefits. Right now, though, it mostly had drawbacks.

"What did you have against mom?" I whimpered, crawling toward my younger sister's feet. As a higher ranking ninja - class A, to be exact - I needed to show the proper amount of respect, lest it cost my head.

Nothing. She was a good woman, up until the end.

'Ari!'

the best, okay?"

"But she was just a civilian!" I cried, rising to my feet. Ari stared, obviously trying her best to ignore my social slip.

"Sister. I will not say it again."

"You refuse to tell me anything because I'm a civilian, too. Are you planning on weeding me out next, too?"

"If you continue on like this, yes." A dark voice beckoned to me from the hallway. As if by instinct, I lowered to my haunches. Dad floated in, an air of distaste on his lips.

"Now, then, Cordelia, if you'll excuse us. We have a family meeting. Go on, now."

I looked to my sister for help. She, too, was silent. Of course. Ari knew better than to speak against a Class S. I slinked off, careful to not make eye contact with my father.

I had a sinking feeling that I knew just what this family meeting was about.
